

JNEY, HAVE YOU SEEN THE HIGHWAY?

We headed off the interstate about an hour ago
We were searching for a station
Where the diesel cost was low
When we wandered down a backroad
Where no motorhome should go
I think we're lost again!

REFRAIN:
Honey, have you seen the highway
Hit a dead end going my way
Can this be the scenic bi-way
I think we're lost again!

The clerk down at the mini-mart
Said two miles at the max
Turn left before the liquor store
And cross the railroad tracks
The gravel driveway's on the right
Turn in there and relax
I think we're lost again!

REFRAIN

We thought we'd take a short-cut
So we made a little plan
We would go across the bypass
And then circle round the dam
And now it's two hours later
And we're back where we began
I think we're lost again!

REFRAIN

We checked the map out carefully
But had it turned around
So when we drove on up the street
We actually went down
And when we thought we headed in
We drove right out of town
I think we're lost again!

REFRAIN

We saw the giant outlet mall
And pulled in for a lark
Hit all two hundred fifty stores
And shopped 'til after dark
Remembered all our packages
But, Lord, where did we park?
I think we're lost again!

REFRAIN

Honey, doesn't that corner looks kinda familiar? Didn't we pass this way about twenty minutes ago?
Honey, don't any of your relatives live on roads with street signs?
Honey, do you remember where I put that map?
Honey, look, we just crossed the state line! But what state?
Oh, honey, are you sure there's enough room to turn around in there?
Honey, honey, where are you?
